Intro – C

```
 C                  Dm         G       F
Could it be the season's changin', the winds of winter rearranging
C                    F                 G
All the leaves like fallin' queens of sorrow
F                                      C                   F
Could be the freezing rain a-fallin', could be sad September callin'
C                  F                  C   F            C
Or maybe its knowin' - she'll be gone - Come tomorrow

C                                 Dm        G           F
Well, it's strange how many tortured mornings, fell upon us with no warning
C               F                   G
Lookin' for a smile to beg and borrow
F                                      C                   F
It's over now, there is no returning, a thousand bridges sadly burning
C                    F                 C  F               C
And light the way I have to walk -alone - Come tomorrow

```
C                Dm          G     F
I guess that no amount of lying, to myself will stop the crying
C                  F                   G
I guess I have to take things like they are
F                                     C                   F
The facts are plain to see it's only, that I ain't used to being lonely
C                F          C      F              C      F              C
Like I'm gonna be - without you - Come tomorrow - Come tomorrow
