

Tear Joint

Dan Penn

Intro - G-C-D-G

                  C          D          G
This ain't no beer joint - no it's a tear joint
          D                                  C                  D
Just a place where lonely people - like to come - sit around and cry
                  C                                  G
This ain't no beer joint - oh it's a tear joint ----c-g
          D                  C          D          G
And I feel - one more falling - from my eye

                  C          D                  G
Set them up my friend - yeah I'm back again
          E                                  F                  C                  G
Would you please bring me a tall one - oh my troubles they ain't the small ones
          A7                                  D
Thank the lord for dim lit taverns - to cry your heart out in

Ch

Break - C-D-G

                  C          D                  G
Put a quarter in the jukebox - watch this old loser cry
          E                  F                  C                  G
When they play them old sad songs - well it brings back all the bygones
          A7                                  D
And all the rights - that turned out wrong - suddenly they come back strong

                  C          D          G
This ain't no beer joint - no it's a tear joint
          C                  E                  A7                  D
Just a place where lonely people - like to come - and sit and cry
                  C          D          G
This ain't no beer joint - oh it's only a tear joint
          C                  E                  A7  D          C  D  G
And I feel - one more falling - from my eye
